BRAZIL BREAKS OFF RELATIONS WITH RUSSIA

Press Attack on President Blamed; Soviet Zone States May Be Next.

By The Associated Press

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 21—Brazil, second largest country in the Western Hemisphere, announced today she had severed diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia.

The announcement set diplomats to speculating that Brazil might eventually extend the break to countries in the Soviet sphere of influence. They recalled Chile's recent break with Yugoslavia.

The break with Russia formalized a situation already virtually in effect. Brazil resumed relations with Russia in 1945 but there have been no commercial or cultural exchanges .. Rio's ambassador to Moscow, Mario Pimentel Brandao, has spent much of the time in Stockholm for reasons of health. Moscow's ambassador, Jacob Suritz, left Brazil following the official outlawing of the Communist party here several months ago.

Objected to Press

Brazil took offense at Russian press attacks on this country and on President Eurico Gaspar Dutra. One of the Russian periodicals called Dutra an incompetent soldier and a Fascist.

Vice President Nereu Ramos had declared the break was "imperative for national honor."

In Moscow yesterday, Pravda, anticipating the break, said that talk of the severance of relations showed "reactionaries" here had "lost all balance."

See Turning Point

Some diplomats were inclined to interpret Brazil's action as a turning point in Latin American relations with Russia and communism. They foresaw repercussions at the inter-American conference in January, scheduled to discuss the United States proposal for standardization of arms in this hemisphere.

The foreign office statement said the U. S. embassy in Moscow had assumed charge of Brazil's interests in the Soviet Union.

Well informed diplomatic sources here said the Yugoslav legation probably would handle Russian affairs in Brazil.

U. S. TO REPRESENT BRAZIL AT MOSCOW

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21—The state department announced today it has agreed to a Brazilian request to represent Brazil's interests in Russia and is so notifying the Soviet government. At the same time, press officer Lincoln White said the break in relations between Rio De Janeiro and Moscow is "strictly a matter for the Brazilian and Soviet governments."

COURT ISSUES ORDER IN SCHOOL COMPLAINT

Four 30-Day Jail Sentences Suspended.

Of seven families cited to appear in juvenile court at 3 p. m. Monday on charges of contributing to the neglect of their children, only five appeared. The two failing to observe the court order have been cited in contempt of court and will be brought in today for action by Juvenile Judge Edward J. Ruzzo.

Of the five that appeared to answer charges of failing, neglecting and refusing to clean their children of lice or nits, it was found in four cases that the charge was true. The mother in each case was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail.

The sentences were suspended on the condition that the children be kept free of vermin. In the event of a recurrence, parents will be notified by school authorities and if the situation is not corrected within 48 hours, a new complaint will be filed and Judge Ruzzo will execute sentence.

In the fifth instance, the charge was dismissed due to conflicting evidence concerning the receipt of the warning notice issued by school authorties.

Young Fan To Represent Ruth at Friend's Rites

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 — Babe Ruth, too ill to attend the funeral tomorrow at Lowell, Mass., of Rev. Brother Gilbert, C.F.X., who discovered Babe's baseball prowess, accepted today an offer from a 12-year-old fan to represent him at the services.

Brother Gilbert, who taught the Babe at St. Mary's Industrial school in Catonsville, Md., died Sunday at Keith academy, Lowell, Mass.

Ruth made public a letter received from Frank Haggerty of Danvers, Mass. It read:

"Dear Babe: I'm sorry your friend died. If you wish and the brothers will let children go to the mass, I will go for you as I live in Danvers. I will behave.

"Love,

"Frank Haggerty."

Ruth said he had accepted the offer and arranged for an officer of the academy to pick up the boy and take him to the funeral services.

2 BID ON GALION POWER CONTRACT

Special to The Star

GALION, Oct. 21—The Ohio Public Service Co., Cleveland, and the Ohio Power Co., Tiffin, were the only two bidders for furnishing supplemental electric energy for the city of Galion, when the bids were opened by Service Director K. A. Poister at 1 p. m. Monday.

Complicated specifications and a technicality arising from the form of the bids turned in, will require study before a decision can be made on the bids, city officials said.

The O. P. S. used the proposal form which H. J. Rosson, consulting engineer of Cleveland, member of the Burns and McDonnell firm of Kansas City, had prepared, while the Ohio Power Co. bid was not presented on the proposed form. For this reason, Poister said, the detailed specifications made it impossible to compare the bids immediately. He also pointed out that Acting Solicitor Robert L. Moulton may have to rule on whether the latter bid is legal because it was not presented on the forms supplied by the city and compiled by the consulting engineer.

A member of Mayor William Amann's advisory committee said the bids were reported as "substantially less than the cost to the city of generating power." The committee member said he had consulted with the bidding companies' representatives on this fact.

Rosson has been hired by the city to assist in the electrical power problem, here. He is a member of the firm that prepared recommendations to solve Galion's problem of inadequate power for expanding industry.

CONFERENCE ON AID CALLED BY TRUMAN

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21—President Truman today summoned congressional leaders to the White House for a conference Thursday on Europe's financial plight.

The White House said invitations are going out today for the meeting at 2:30 p. m. Thursday for what Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross described as a "further discussion of emergency foreign aid."

The group is the same as the one which met with Mr. Truman Sept. 29.

In addition to the Republican and Democratic leaders in both houses, it includes the chairman and ranking minority members of the foreign affairs and appropriations committees and Senator Taft (R-Ohio), chairman of the G.O.P. policy group in the senate.

Presumably the conference will canvass the outlook for emergency stop-gap aid to Europe as well as the outlook for a European recovery plan based on Secrtary of State Marshall's self-help proposal, and the possibility of a special session of congress.

Ross would not elaborate beyond his brief assertion that emergency foreign aid would be the topic.

NEW POULTRY PLAN ADVANCED

Feed Men Suggest Drive To Induce U.S. To Eat More Chickens, Not Less.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21—Poultry and feed men came forward today with their second plan to eliminate poultryless Thursdays from the food campaign.

After working late into the night, industry spokesmen announced they were ready to bring the Citizens Food committee a specific new proposal to save grain for Europe by taking it away from chickens.

"We think we've got something acceptable," said an official of the National Poultry Producers federation, whose first suggestion was rejected last night by Charles Luckman, food committee chairman.

The federation, working in cooperation with the commercial feed industry, said the new plan would be in shape for Luckman to take into a meeting of President Truman's cabinet food committee this morning.

Open to Suggestions

In the afternoon the poultry and feed industry men planned to meet again with Luckman, who last night declared his readiness to restore chicken and turkey to Thursday menus if an adequate substitute means of conservation were offered.

The first industry plan boiled down to this: abolish poultryless Thursdays, start an eat-more-chicken campaign, enlist the support of farmers in a feed-saving drive, rely on the "self-discipline" of poultrymen and on the cooperation of the feed industry.

The government could save 4,250,000 bushels of grain a week if it would "encourage rather than discourage poultry buying," the National Poultry Producers federation told Luckman in a statement.

Under such a program 340,000,000 chickens would be killed and marketed in the next 90 days, the

Menjou Calls Writer Lawson Chief of Communists but "Can't Prove It."

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 — Adolphe Menjou told house investigators today he has "heard" that John Howard Lawson, film writer, is head of Communists in Hollywood but cannot prove it.

The dapper film actor also testified to the house committee on un-American activities that he believes Herbert Sorrell, head of the Conference of Studio Unions, "is a Communist."

With a wave of his hand, he said he would question the loyalty of anyone publicly associating with Sorrell.

He was asked, as a member of the Screen Actors Guild, if he knows of any members who are Communists.

"No," he replied, "but I know a great many people who act an awful lot like Communists."

Makes Testimony Public

Before questioning Menjou, the committee made public testimony he gave a subcommittee in secret in Los Angeles last May 15.

This disclosed that Menjou declared at that time that Hollywood "is one of the main centers of Communist activities in America."

He also expressed the opinion then that "it is the desire of the masters in Moscow" to use movies as a propaganda medium toward the ultimate end of an overthrow of the American government.

Robert E. Stripling, chief investigator for the committee, put the transcript of the secret hearing into the record when Menjou was called to reaffirm his previous testimony and elaborate on it.

Gives Thumbnail Sketches

The transcript disclosed that Menjou, along with his views on communism, gave the subcommittee some opinions on Hollywood figures. He said:

Of Eric Johnston, head of the Motion Picture Producers association—"I think he is running for the presidency. He will never get it."

Of Charles Chaplin, the actor—"the only gun Mr. Chaplin ever heard go off was a pop gun in his studio, yet he is a military expert and a financial expert."

As for individuals with un-American leanings, Menjou's word to the subcommittee was this: "We have many, many dangerous directors and actors."

He told it:

"They made a picture called 'North Star' on orders from Washington, I am told, I have no proof. It was a dreadful picture that drew a picture of Russian life as idyllic. . . .

"The orders by John Howard Lawson to the Screen Actors' Guild were 'in every picture put in key principles of propaganda, particularly in the expensive set,

Fund Workers Launch Campaign for $60,043

Support of the annual community chest campaign to preserve and promote "the American way of life" and build for future citizenship was the challenge in the message of Rev. Philip Auer of Galion, at the "kick-off" meeting of the annual financial campaign of the Marion Community Foundation last night at the Y. M. C. A. Today, under the leadership of Ralph E. Carhart, general chairman for the campaign, workers began a city and countywide drive to raise $60,043 to finance the six character building and welfare agencies comprising the foundation, the Salvation Army, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Y.M.C.A., Y-Teens (formerly the Girl Reserves) and the Emergency Hospital Relief service. Approximately 400 men and women will take part in the drive scheduled to close Friday night, Oct. 31.

Mr. Carhart presided for the meeting held in the Club Co-Ed clubroom and attended by campaign workers, representatives of the foundation agencies and interested persons from the city and county.

Pointing to the fact that working, and contributing to the Community Chest is one way of meeting citizenship responsibility and demonstrating to the world that American democracy and the American way of life is workable and profitable, Rev. Auer emphasized the further importance of supporting institutions and projects that build the lives of the youths of today who are to be the cilzens of tomorrow.

Realization by the workers and those who will contribute to the campaign, of the need of these institutions, a firm resolve to meet these needs, and a third and final step, the urge to action, will make for the success of the drive, Rev. Auer told his audience. The character building agencies, Rev. Auer said, contribute immeasurably to the life and welfare of the community and serve as a bulwark against the many forces that are so apt to tear down the lives of the youth of today. Stressing the work of the agencies, he emphasized the importance of the four youth groups, the religious and character building work of the Salvataion Army and the Emergency Hospital Relief service. The last named he said "is an indication that the people of the community realize they are their brother's keeper."

Cleveland Speaks

E. L. Cleveland, president of the Marion Community Foundation, after expressing his appreciation of the men and women who have volunteered their services for the drive, said that "nowhere else in the world do so many people give so much to so many people as in America." Organized drives to support such agencies as make up the foundation is solely an American idea, he pointed out, and asked his listeners to consider what would be the alternative if it were not for such projects. "American life remains richer because of volunteer campaigns such as this," he added, and asked the men and women by their generous response as workers and contributors to help keep it so. "Remember," he said, "a town that is good enough to live in is good enough to boost; this is a pretty good country and this is a pretty good community."

Mayor Harry L. Dowler, in adding his support to the campaign asked that not only the workers but the community in general keep in mind the challenge of "The American Way of Life." He emphasized the responsibility of making the campaign a success not only from a financial standpoint but to maintain the standards and progress of the institutions supported by the foundation and the city and county as a whole.

Plan of Campaign

Charlton Myers, chairman of the speakers bureau explained the campaign goal which is to sell some 12,000 shares in Marion's future to support the work of the six agencies in the foundation. "We are asking people, not for dollars not for shares, but support of organizations that have as objectives the maintaining of high standards in decency, welfare, education and religion."

The invocation was spoken by Rev. J. B. Holloway, pastor of Trinity Baptist church, and Very Rev. William J. Spickerman, V. F., pastor of St. Mary Catholic church, gave the closing prayer.

Music for the meeting was by the Harding High school band under the direction of George Lane. The selections included "America," in which the assembly joined with singing, "United Nations," and "Liberty Fleet" by King, "The Old Lamplighter," Tobias-Simon, "Repasz Band," Lincoln and "Thumbs-Up," King.

The address by Rev. Auer and the closing prayer were broadcast over WMRN, local broadcasting station.

The first report meeting will be held Wednesday night when the workers will assemble at the school buildings in the various wards. The meetings will be held at 7:30 p. m. and at this time the volunteer workers will report on the progress of the drive. Other report meetings are scheduled for Friday, Oct. 24, Tuesday, Oct. 28, and Friday, Oct. 31.

INDIANS TO CONTINUE TIE WITH OHIO LOOP

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 21 — The Cleveland Indians' front office reported today the Tribe probably would continue to operate a farm club in the Ohio State league in 1948, following transfer of the Dayton Indians' franchise to another site.

"We understand that Portsmouth, Mansfield and at least two Indiana towns are bidding for the Ohio State league franchise, which will be vacated when Dayton moves into the class A Central league next year," said Tribe Business Manager Rudy Schaeffer.

"However, the site of the new team will be determined by league officials," he added, "and it will then be necessary for the Indians to work out affiliation with representatives of the new club."

Plans for organizing the Central league were announced last Saturday at Detroit. T. J. Halligan of Flint, Mich., the league president, said Saginaw, Grand Rapids, Muskegon and Fort Wayne, along with Dayton, had signed official entry applications, and that the league would operate with eight teams.

WAR DEAD TO LEAVE COLUMBUS THIS WEEK

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 21—The Columbus depot will complete the sending home of the first World War II dead to arrive in Ohio "by, not later than the first of next week," Col. Albert Bardon, chief of the graves registration service at the depot, said today.

The first shipment of bodies came into the depot early last week.

Bardon said the depot was the disbursing point for a six-state area and "we currently are sending the heroes home at the rate of 30 a day."

He said the depot was not holding up any bodies as relatives of some of the men complained.

"It's a slow process," he said, "because we treat each of them as an individual. Of course, if we treated them like bales of hay, or rations, we could send them on their way in 30 minutes."

Bardon said he had 250 men working "night and day" in the war dead section.

"We want every casket to look like a million dollars when we send it out, so we spend considerable time polishing it," he said. "Then, there's considerable paper work and the problem of arranging transportation."

He said the transportation problem was a difficult one in many cases, since trains to some cities run only once or twice a week.

"In order to send one body 250 miles by train it would have been necessary to use seven different railroads and make seven train changes," he said. "We decided to use a depot hearse, although normally we do that only to deliver bodies in the immediate area."

APPEARS IN COURT BRIEFLY

Only Few Spectators Present as Arraignment on Indictment Is Moved Up.

Ray A. Shappard, confessed killer of Roxie Ann Green, 16-year-old Prospect High school girl, will go on trial for his life Dec. 9.

His attorney, Ralph E. Carhart, waived a reading of the indictment charging the 32-year-old World War II veteran with first degree murder and entered a plea of "not guilty" at Shappard's arraignment before Judge Paul D. Smith in common pleas court at 4:15 p. m. Monday.

Shappard was to be arraigned at 9 a. m. today. The arraignment was moved ahead at the request of County Prosecutor James E. Reed, who is attending a state tax commission hearing today in Columbus.

The blond-haired Prospect man entered the courtroom in custody of Deputy Sheriff Edgar Fink shortly after 4 p. m. He showed no outward sign of nervousness. Neatly attired in an Army olive drab shirt and trousers, he chatted calmly with his counsel while awaiting entry into the courtroom of Judge Smith. The brown and yellow honorable discharge insignia of the armed forces stood out above the right breast pocket of Shappard's O.D. shirt, neatly creased and open at the neck.

Brief Proceeding

The arraignment was a matter of minutes. Attorney Carhart waived the reading of the indictment, entered the plea, Judge Smith set the trial date and it was over. Less than a handful of court attaches witnessed the setting in motion of the machinery of a murder trial.

Shappard spoke a few words to the prosecuting attorney as he was being led back to his cell. At the courtroom door, he asked Prosecutor Reed, "Why don't you come over and see me?" That was the extent of his conversation other than with Attorney Carhart prior to the arraignment.

The murder trial will require impaneling a special jury. Judge Smith said following the arraignment that a venire of 75 persons would be drawn.

Girl Slain Sept. 19

Shappard will go on trial for his life less than three months after the Sept. 19 hammer slaying of the young country girl. He confessed the hammer slaying to county authorities on Sept. 29 after questioning by Sheriff LeRoy Retterer and Prosecutor Reed. Following his confession, he led the authorities to the scene along the county line road a mile east of Norton between Delaware and Marion counties. He not only led them to the body but told them where the ball peen hammer he used to slay the girl had been thrown after the murder had been committed.

During questioning and since being held in county jail awaiting first the action of the grand jury, his inevitable indictment and arraignment, Shappard has maintained coolness, seemingly indifferent that he is to be tried for murder.

At the arraignment his counsel merely entered a "not guilty" plea. The plea of "not guilty by virture of temporary insanity" that was predicted by some persons was not forthcoming. There was no move to have Shappard sent to the Lima State hospital for observation to determine sanity.

GINGER ROGERS' MOTHER LOSES LIBEL SUIT ROUND

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 21—Superior Judge Frank G. Swain has ordered Mrs. Lela Rogers, mother of actress Ginger Rogers, to reply to 24 of 32 questions which she refused to answer at a recent deposition hearing in connection with one of two $1,000,000 libel and slander suits filed against her.

Playwright Emmet Lavery, president of the Screen Writers Guild, is a plaintiff in one of the suits, both of which were filed against Mrs. Rogers after she took part in a radio debate last Sept. 2 on the subject of communism in Hollywood.

Judge Swain ruled that one of the questions she must answer, as propounded by attorneys for the plaintiffs, is the query as to whether she intended to indicate in the radio broadcast "that Lavery was a Communist sympathizer."

Your Good Health

By DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

A Patient With An Alergy

The allergic or oversensitive person is a law unto himself.

One man may be oversensitive to certain kinds of food, while another is affected only by things that he breathe, such as dust or pollen. Moreover, the offending substance may cause one reaction in one person and quite a different one in another. For instance, oversensitivity to food has many manifestations, causing hives in one individual, asthma in a second and constant nasal discharge in a third. One rather strange result of this kind of alergy is an inflammation which appears only on the skin of the hands.

This is known as eczematoid dermatitis and, while it can be brought about by contact with soaps or oils used in industry or household world, it is most often due to oversensitivity to foods.

This proved by the fact that the rash can be eliminated in many people by getting rid of certain foods and made to reappear when these foods are again added to the diet.

Food sensitivity should always be suspected when the inflammation takes the form of a red, itching rash made up of tiny blisters massed together in patches.

Sometimes larger, pimple-like eruptions occur on the palm. Rubbing causes these to break open and fluid oozes out, forming a crust. Later, there may be cracking and scaling of the skin.

This type of dermatitis gets worse in the fall, winter and spring, and is better in the summer. After it has cleared up, it tends to recur. The back of the hands or fingers are affected much more often than are the palms or spaces between the fingers.

In attempting to determine as to the foods causing an eruption of this type, what is known as elimination diets may be used. These diets are made up of different types of foods.

After using one group of foods, an examination is made to see if the rash is getting better or worse. If it is getting worse, it means that some of the foods in the diet may be responsible for the condition; then, other foods are substituted.

I have outlined such elimination diets which you may have by writing to me and enclosing a self-addressed, large stamped envelope. Names will not be used. Of course, such diets should be employed under the care of a physician.

There are also other means of detecting the offending substance. One of these is known as skin testing. By this method, extracts of various foods are injected into the skin. Those to which the individual is sensitive will usually cause a large hive to appear at the site of injection. In this type of case, however, diet elimination tests give better and more certain results.

Once a satisfactory diet has been found, the rash will begin to disappear, usually in about two weeks. Itching decreases and fewer new blisters form.

As improvement progresses other foods can be added gradually—one new food at a time, as the doctor notes its effect on the rash. If the new food does not cause the rash to flare up again, it can be retained in the diet. If the proper diet is faithfully followed, damaged skin cells gradually heal and the rash clears up entirely.

Six Traffic Mishaps Reported at Bucyrus

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Oct. 21—While Bucyrus police were investigating four traffic accidents over the weekend which resulted in injury to a pedestrian and arrest of two drivers, the sheriff's office was called out to check on two county mishaps, one of which demolished the car involved and caused injury to the driver and a passenger.

Mrs. Ina Mountgomery, North Sandusky, was treated at City hospital for injuries suffered when she was struck by a car operated by Robert M. Loren, 19, of Mt. Gilead, Saturday night. Loren was fined $15 and costs on a reckless operation charge in mayor's court Monday.

S. L. Powers, Bucyrus building contractor, paid $50 and costs on a drunken driving charge after his car struck a street light post in front of the police station early Sunday. He was released under $100 bond.

Pauline Benard, Bucyrus, received bruises when the car in which she was riding with Harold Taylor of near Nevada, collided with a car operated by George L. Ramsey of near Bucyrus. Other cars involved in a traffic mishap over the weekend were driven by J. C. Willie and Paul McGuire.

In the accidents investigated by the sheriff's office, Henry J. McFadon, Painesville, and Tom O'Shaughnessy, Columbus, escaped injury when their car struck a culvert, hit two trees and traveled along a ditch for 400 feet when the driver, McFadon, fell asleep at the wheel. The other accident involved cars operated by L. C. Newman, Galion, and C. W. Spangler, Crestline, and occurred on the House road north of Galion.

STRATOSPHERE STROLL. Out for a walk with his mother, Ernest Evans, 23, of Middlesex, England, towers over her, Ernest is seven foot, seven inches tall and weighs 357 pounds. The young giant, who has four sisters, is an only son. His sole regret about his height is that he can't get a bicycle that he can ride. (International)

Industrial Promotion Underway at Upper

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, Oct. 21—A group of Upper Sandusky businessmen, organized as the Upper Sandusky Industries Co., is attempting to bring additional industries here by raising funds to purchase land and construct buildings that can be rented or sold to interested companies.

The group now has, spokesmen say, an unusual opportunity in the bid of a Michigan company, manufacturers of a staple product, that desires to locate here. A building of 30,000 square feet of floor space is needed. The Michigan company will sign a 10-year lease at a "good" rental with an option to buy the land and building. The local group has purchased a building site and is offering "shares" in the building to residents here in blocks of $25 upward.

Directors of Upper Sandusky Industries Co. are E. G. Boles, president; Miller E. Bowen, A. K. Hall, Ray F. Koehler, Louis A. Kuenzli, V. A. Menningen, E. F. Stephan, D. D. Stowe, Edward S. Strasser and Ward W. Walton.

Y-Teens Perform Good Work On Small Budget From Fund

This is one of a series of articles dealing with the welfare and character building agencies which participate in the Marion Community Foundation drive opening next Monday. The articles explain the work and program of the agencies and their urgent need for support in the annual campaign.

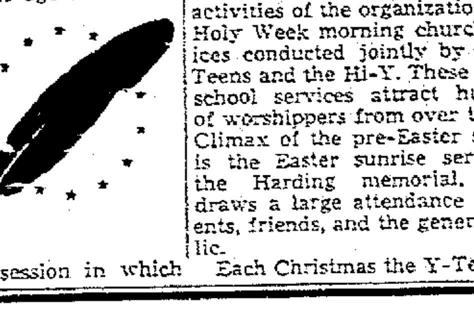
* * *

A spiritual life, a healthy body, a keen mind—the points of the triangle which is their symbol—are the guideposts of Marion's junior Y.W.C.A. group, the Y-Teens.

For more than 20 years the Y-Teens have been contributing to the community prograss of Marion. Until the summer of [illegible] when the name Y-Teens was adopted at the national Y.W.C.A. conference, they were Marion's Girl Reserves.

A budget of $500 has been set as the minimum for their continued service in 1948 as an agency of the Marion Community Foundation.

Some 500 girls of junior and senior high school age are members of Y-Teen groups at Central, Thomas A. Edison, Harding, and Vernon Height's schools.



In bi-weekly meetings they have a religious service, a business session in which school and community assistance projects are discussed, and a program of general interest to the membership.

Each summer a group of Marion girls attend a week-long camping session in which the purposes of their group are stressed in activities of study, handicraft, worship, and camp recreation. This summer the Marion Women's Council of Y-Teens sponsored five girls at Camp Inawendewin, near Canton. The number of girls the Council sponsors is determined by the funds available. Some time early this fall the girls who went to camp will make full reports of their activities to their individual groups.

One of the most popular public activities of the organization is the Holy Week morning church services conducted jointly by the Y-Teens and the Hi-Y. These before-school services attract hundreds of worshippers from over the city. Climax of the pre-Easter services is the Easter sunrise service at the Harding memorial, which draws a large attendance of parents, friends, and the general public.

Each Christmas the Y-Teens assist the Chamber of Commerce in staging its Santa Claus parade.

During the annual "March of Dimes" drive, the Y-Teens are especially busy, since their group furnishes the corps of girls who are at all performances in Marion's theaters to pass the coin collection boxes.

As a concrete contribution last year to the international friendship which is a part of the Y-Teen and Y.W.C.A. program, the Harding High school Y-Teens collected money from the entire school for "care food packages" for the hungry in Europe. If the name of a family abroad was designated, a package was shipped to that family; otherwise, the national sponsoring organization made up the food packages for general distribution.

Collecting old spectacles was another of last year's projects that won the approbation of the state welfare department. Lenses from the glasses were reground and used in glasses for prisoners at the Ohio penitentiary.

In their own school groups, the Y-Teens sponsor annual mother-daughter dinners and a Y-Teen week of morning devotions.

Every member of Y-Teen—all girls in the junior and senior high schools are eligible—wears the Junior Y.W.C.A. blue and silver national pin, which carries the triangle superimposed on a world globe, symbolic of the international scope of the organization.

Goal of Group

A Y.W.C.A. home of their own is one of the goals of the Y-Teens, the Women's Council, and women of the city who have long been interested in establishing a center for women's interests comparable to the Y organization for men. With a building of their own, leaders are certain that activities of the Y-Teens could be extended considerably and that worthwhile scheduled of varied activities would draw a large response from women throughout the community.

Without the Y-Teen groups in Marion, it is felt that the community would lose one of its most active organizations for the character development of young women and that the girls would be deprived of an inspirational program which helps them to become valuable citizens of their home, city, state, and nation.

Much credit for the success of the Y-Teen organization in Marion is given by the Women's Council to the teacher-advisors in the schools. This year these advisors are Miss Margery Eymon, Miss Ruth Turner, Miss Ruth Lenk, and Miss Dorothy Bloomingdale at Harding; Mrs. Hazel Strubel and Mrs. Irene Moore at Edison; Miss Ruth Roe and Miss Elizabeth Gray at Central, and Miss Lelah Brookshire at Vernon.

Officers of the Women's Council are Mrs. Charles H. Isaly, president; Mrs. E. G. Siefert, vice president; Mrs. J. H. Harmon, secretary; Mrs. E. L. Bush, treasurer.

Members of the council are Mrs. George Alber, Mrs. E. Paul Bachman, Mrs. Edgar W. Barnhart, Mrs. Frank M. Foster, Mrs. Howard Geer, Mrs. Earl N. Hale, Mrs. Merle Hamilton, Mrs. William K. Hamor, Mrs. E. E. Holt, Mrs. Ray R. King, Mrs. Carl W. Leffler, Mrs. Charles W. Oborn, Mrs. Richard Plantz, Mrs. J. E. Scandling, Mrs. Clare W. Smith, Mrs. Vernon L. Street, Mrs. Howard Swink, Mrs. George E. Turner, Mrs. O. M. Young, and Mrs. C. Z. Zachman.

KING SPEAKS TO PARLIAMENT

Recovery Heads British Program with Nationalization of Gas Industry Proposed.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 21—King George VI opened a new session of parliament today and in a speech written by his Socialist ministers called for nationalization of the British gas industry and for a curb on the powers of the ancient house of Lords. He gave top priority, however, to economic recovery.

Both houses sat together in the lords' chamber for the ceremony.

The king read his 15-minute speech slowly and deliberately with scarcely a pause. In 10 words the king announced the government's momentous decision to trim the authority of the lords:

"Legislation will be introduced to amend the parliament act, 1911" (their authority is set out in that act).

Meaning Confirmed

A high government source confirmed that this cryptic statement was announcement of a cabinet decision, reached yesterday, to limit the power of the peers.

"A bill will be laid before you to bring the gas industry under public ownership in the combination of the plan for the coordination of the fuel and power industries," the king said, giving a preview of the socialist program for the coming year.

No mention was made of nationalization of the iron and steel industry, another Socialist objective.

"The first aim of my ministers," the king declared, "will be to redress the adverse balance of payments, particularly by expanding exports."

He said his government would "continue to participate in the work of European reconstruction put in hand in the recent conference in Paris."

To Support UN

"The present obstacles to cooperation and understanding between the peoples of the world," he said, "have strengthened the determination of my government to support the United Nations and to seek by that means to promote the mutual trust and tolerance on which peaceful progress depends."

"It is my earnest hope," he said, "that the forthcoming conference of foreign ministers will result in a measure of agreement leading towards a democratic and self-supporting Germany which will not threaten world security, and to the satisfactory settlement of the international status of Austria.

"I trust that a treaty of peace with Japan, which will contribute to the welfare of all the countries in the Far East, may be concluded at an early date."

The new legislative projects outlined in the king's speech, drafted by Prime Minister Clement Attlee and his ministers, numbered nearly a score. The plan to clip the peers' power was the most controversial.

American Diary

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK

GOD gave a gift called morning—but few people get up to see it.

It takes a long time to convert the ordinary man to an appreciation of morning. It has taken me about 36 years. I don't know whether that's above or below par.

Everybody agrees sunset is wonderful. But I am sure that mankind is forever divided on the question of whether the sunrise is worth while.

Hal Boyle

You can't count the playboys and play girls who see the sun swim over the horizon on their way home from the catch - dollar night spots. To them sunrise is sunset—a golden lamp that lights them to a late bed, where they lie ache-ridden. Their lives are as upside down as toast on top of chicken a la king.

Farmers sometimes become so accustomed to the beauty of morning that they take it for granted—like the man in the Louvre in Paris who dusts the face of Mona Lisa. The immortal enigma of her smile has become commonplace to him. He would notice her only if the famous paint cracked in a sudden belly laugh. Then he would love her.

Sunrise Is Surprise

But most of us meet morning only on an intermitten basis, and sunrise is a rare surprise.

For many years I hated morning bitterly. You can't take her with a sense of duty, and that was all I greeted her with. I was nine years old, and I got up an hour before the sun did to gather the newspapers I delivered.

To me morning was a frosty hazard in winter and a clammy obstacle in summer. The rising sun in July was only a portent of sweaty torment—in February only a frozen promise.

I guess you have to know a little about life to appreciate a sunrise, and a boy throwing papers doesn't know that. I thought only that when the sun came up I was so much nearer to the end of my route—and breakfast, and school. And school I loved then because it was warm and sure, and I could drop the pack that wore my shoulder sore.

Loves Mysterious Night

Because I had to drag myself unwillingly from sleep at 4 a. m., I learned to hate sunrise and morning. Night became my lifelong friend because it stood for exciting loneliness and comfort and the erasing of childhood problems. I feared its mystery, as children and savages do, but I loved it, too. It meant the brief security of sleep and a place out of the cold.

When I was quit of throwing morning newspapers I turned to this solace of night, and for 25 years I have done most of my work after the sun went down.

I long have thought that darkness gives a lift to the imagination, and in some ways it does. But recently I became reacquainted with early rising and made the first friendship of my life with morning.

Dawn is still a wet, clammy, cold and shuddery hour of day to me, but it leads to something—a spiritual clearness and perspective that night obscures. After living half of my life I've found the meaning in sunrise, and now I wonder how I could have been blind to its beauty so many years.

But it's nice to know that at any age the world still holds something you can grow up to.

Byrnes Accepts Offer To Be Secretary of State Under Truman

This is a serialization of James F. Byrnes' "Speaking Frankly" —six of fifteen chapters of the book published Oct. 15, 1947, by Harper & Brothers. Copyright, 1947, by James F. Byrnes Foundation (A Charitable Trust).

• • •

By JAMES F. BYRNES

BY MID-MARCH we had established a foothold on the east bank of the Rhine and had received word from Field Marshal Alexander that high German officers had proposed a meeting in Switzerland to arrange for the surrender of the German army in Italy. Consequently, when we started moving across the Rhine in force on March 23, I concluded it was wrong to postpone action any further, and the following day I presented to the president a letter of resignation, asking that it become effective April 2. I fixed that date because the law required the filing of a quarterly report with the president and congress on April 1, and necessarily I had to submit that report.

When the president tried to persuade me to remain, I reminded him of his promise the previous fall that with the end of the war in Europe I could leave. I told him that I had left the court only to undertake a wartime task; that I did not want to become the head of an agency or bureau in time of peace. I convinced him that the man who was going to direct the reconversion program should be given an opportunity to share in drafting that program, and it was essential, therefore, that the change be made.

We discussed many things, including the plans for the occupation of Germany. He understood the war department was planning to send Assistant Secretary of War John J. McCloy to Germany to head our organization. I informed him McCloy had decided to remain with Secretary Stimson and that my deputy, General Clay, had been selected by the war department for the assignment.

Clay Rated High

To my surprise, he did not know General Clay. I told him I obtained his assignment to my office because, after dealing with officials of all the departments, I had found no man more capable than Clay and no Army officer who had as clear an understanding of the point of view of the civilian. The president remarked that I was unusually enthusiastic about Clay and asked that I bring him in for a talk. The president was leaving that day for Hyde Park but would be spending a day in Washington the following week enroute to Warm Springs. We agreed the three of us would get together that day. Shortly after the president arrived in Hyde Park he telephoned me to ask that I reconsider my resignation, and then, when I did not change my mind, he asked that I suggest a successor. I recommended Judge Fred M. Vinson, who had succeeded me as head of the office of economic stabilization. The president indicated agreement and said we could discuss it when he returned.

The president was unusually nervous the day of his return. During our talk he told General Clay he was glad he was going to Germany and he wanted the general, who was an engineer, to know of his idea of establishing a TVA in Central Europe to develop greater electric power and relieve Europe's chronic coal shortage. Clay stood at attention. The president did not give him a chance to say a word, and as soon as the president had finished Steve Early came into the room. I knew the president was behind his schedule and asked Clay to wait outside for me. I remained for a few minutes to ask about Vinson and the president told me he would appoint Vinson, and asked me to talk to him because he had a number of engagements to fill before leaving that afternoon for Warm Springs. He would telephone Fred later in the day.

Notices Change In President

When I left the president's office and rejoined Clay, I said jokingly: "General, you talk too much."

"Mr. Justice," Clay replied, "even if the president had given me a chance, I doubt that I could have talked to him because I was shocked at his appearance."

Clay had not seen the president for some time. For 41 crowded, exciting months, I had been at work in the White House and, because I saw him frequently, I did not realize, as Clay did, the change in his appearance. Although, when we parted, I had felt that an eventful chapter in our relationship was ended, I certainly did not appreciate that for him the end of life's journey was only a few days away. While waiting for Judge Vinson's appointment to be confirmed, I talked to the president on our direct line to Warm Springs several times and he professed to be feeling much better. I concluded that he was staging a "comeback" as he had done on many previous occasions.

On April 8, I returned to Spartanburg, where the friendly people who are my neighbors gave me a warm welcome. Four days later, with millions of people all over the world, I was stunned by the radio announcement that President Roosevelt was dead.

The secretary of the navy, James V. Forrestal, telephoned that he was sending his plane to Spartanburg to bring me to Washington because he thought I might be of some service during the next few days and he knew I would want to attend the president's funeral.

Visits Truman

Early the next morning I called to see President Truman. He was overwhelmed by the responsibilities suddenly thrust upon him but was rapidly familiarizing himself with the status of pending problems. That afternoon I returned to the White House and he requested me to ride with him the next morning to meet the train bringing the body of President Roosevelt, and to accompany him on the sad journey to Hyde Park.

On the train returning to Washington the president and I discussed many matters. As I had been out of the White House only a few days, I was able to acquaint him with the status of many serious problems in our foreign and domestic relations. In the course of this conversation the president said he would like me to attend the forthcoming United Nations conference in San Francisco as his representative.

"Mr. President, I appreciate your suggestion very much, but I don't think you ought to send me," I replied. "The delegation already is appointed. It is a representative group and includes some very able people. Experience has shown that a personal representative of the president under such circumstances usually causes great dissatisfaction in a delegation. Almost invariably relationships become more personal than representative." President Truman agreed.

The following day he told me he wished to appoint me secretary of state. I did not want in time of peace to be head of an agency considering reconversion problems but I did want to take part in the making of the peace. I said I would accept the appointment, and we agreed that neither the change nor the announcement should be made until the end of the San Francisco conference which was just about to meet.

Mr. Byrnes called the Yalta Conference in February, 1945, "the high tide of Big Three unity," and the next chapter of his book is called "The Tide Begins to Turn." During the spring and early summer of that year, difficulties with the Russians began to multiply, many of them over the destiny of the countries in eastern Europe which had been occupied by the advancing Red army. What happened in Romania is the subject of the next installment of "Speaking Frankly," which will be published tomorrow.

Hollywood "Reds"

THE HOUSE committee on un-American activities isn't going to get top billing in its Hollywood red hunt. For once, the committee is up against people who have forgotten more about the sweet and bitter uses of publicity than most politicians will ever know. This is fine. It may do the red hunters a lot of good to go up against something they can't dispose of with a few random broadsides from the publicity blunderbuss.

The un-American activities committee has done a lot of good. It also has done a lot of harm, all of it avoidable. That's history now. The committee still has a job to do. It is the official agency of congress in charge of putting the people's finger on enemies within the gates—all enemies, not just Commies.

To do its job, the committee must recognize a few fundamentals.

First, there is no place in the United States for gratuitous smearing. The committeemen will know more about that when they've had a chance to see what happens if they try it on the movie industry, which is entirely capable of defending itself against smear tactics.

Second, there is no place in the United States any longer for the kind of provincial thinking that labels every new point of view with a smear word. A few years back the word was "Fascist." Now it's "Communist." The New York court of appeals ruled last week, incidentally, that to call a person a Communist without foundation in fact is libelous—a circumstance in law that's beginning to cool off the epithet wielders.

May the red-hunters have good hunting in Hollywood and not shoot themselves or their friends with the publicity blunderbuss.

Trumpets Muted, Drums Muffled

JAMES C. Petrillo has decreed that no union musicians shall make recordings after Dec. 31 Although mechanically-reproduced music has come to be almost ubiquitous in American life, Petrillo's power is undoubtedly such that he can stop the making of new records. Had his counterpart been in existence 150 years ago, mechanical looms would have been banned because they did more work than individual weavers.

It is unlikely that even Petrillo himself seriously believes the recording industry is about to go the way of the stagecoach. He knows if the recording ban were continued for any great length of time there would be an influx of foreign records and a black market created by members of his own union which eventually would lead to its dissolution. The drastic action and his air of finality probably are part of an act to drive a hard bargain for the craft he represents.

What brings the matter to a showdown is the Taft-Hartley act clause forbidding a union-administered welfare fund which has brought the union $2,000,000 a year from recordings. How the union will be appeased for this loss isn't apparent now, but technological employment confronting many unions musicians cannot be solved by turning back the clock.

As this mechanical age has developed, the substitution of merchanical devices for the personal touch has brought about many contretemps. In no case has progress deferred to custom, tradition, or Petrillo.

Safety Demands Vigilance

TWO airplane misadventures last week ended without loss of life but gave further evidence that government surveillance of airline operation can't be too strict.

In Texas, a plane carrying 53 passengers turned turtle at 8,000 feet when a pilot pulled a lever "to see what would happen." Certainly a loaded plane in flight is no place for a pilot so inept.

In mid-Atlantic, the Bermuda Sky Queen, carrying 69 passengers, was forced down when it ran out of fuel. Fortunately a Coast Guard cutter arrived in time to avert tragedy. Investigation developed that the Sky Queen had a CAA authorization to haul cargo but not passengers on non-scheduled oceanic trips. This same plane has been operated by another line in the Pacific service with a passenger load limit of about 30. It also developed that non-scheduled airline planes are required to have only a 45-minute fuel reserve against a three-hour reserve for regular lines. Aren't passengers and crew entitled to the same safety margin whatever type of plane they use?

Obviously non-scheduled airlines, some of which are bound to be shoestring outfits cutting corners whenever possible, must be held on a tighter rein as a safety precaution

Scanning the Record

Our Children and Their Education

IT IS ostrich-like to ignore the fact that something is very sour about the education of our children. Is it the school system? Is it the elective system in the colleges? Is it the emphasis upon administration rather than learning in the training of our teachers? Is it the secularization of education so that religion, morals, ethics, manners are ignored along with the humanities and logic?

I raise this question from time to time because it is of equal, if not greater, significance than politics. It involves our children, and concerning them we need to be as realistic as we are sentimental. Mr. Justice McReynolds once wrote in a supreme court decision:

"The fundamental theory of liberty upon which all governments in this union repose excludes any general power of the state to standardize its children by forcing them to accept instruction from public education only. The child is not the creature of the state; those who nurture him and direct his destiny have the right, as well as the high duty, to recognize and prepare him for additional duties."

The Real Foundation

In a word, the responsibility for the child and what kind of a man or woman eventuates rests solely with the parent. Neither the school nor the college nor the government can be substitutes for the parent

In this connection, I wish to call attention to a vastly significant book, "Render Unto the People," by Dr. Umphrey Lee, president of the Southern Methodist university. Dr Lee faces the realities of the universally current distortions in thinking about the state in relationship to the mind and character of the individual. He says:

". . . All peoples tend to resent nonconformity, and there is a type of mind, especially prominent in modern times, which holds that the state, democratic or otherwise, is competent to set the moral as well as other standards for the people."

Then he adds:

"The whole point is that the modern state is supreme in so much that it is taken for granted by many that the state has the right, if it chooses, to regulate the life of the people in whatever way may be good for them. And this is as true in a democracy as in a dictatorship . . ."

Lack of Individualism

The menace to individual integrity in education is that more and more we think as a mass, as a mob, instead of as individual personalities. The emphasis on majority rule, which is a political rather than an educational yardstick, becomes more frighteningly devastating.

Dr. Lee makes a point about this which cannot be ignored:

". . . We can hope that the fashions in government will not sweep us too far away from the traditional faith of the American people in the duty of government to protect the citizen, in as much freedom from control, not to say meddling, as is consistent with the new conditions of our national life . . ."

Some time ago, I injected this column into the controversy over school buses for children who attend other than public schools, making the point that it is not the school but the child that matters and that if social benefits are to be available for any American children, they should be available for all American children. This is a moral doctrine based upon the fundamental American theory of equality before the law.

Missing the Point

I received a large and acrimonious mail on this subject, the gist of which was wholly unrelated to the postulate. It was generally a broad attack on the Roman Catholic church as an evil, alien institution. The question raised was that if a majority can hit down Catholics or Jews and make them exceptional, could they not do the same to Quakers, Dukhobors or Jehovah's witnesses and if so, what becomes of the sacred principle of nonconformity which really established this country, Bringing both Pilgrim and Puritan to New England, Catholic to Maryland, Moravian to Pennsylvania and so on?

If a majority can destroy the integrity of the individual, are not both Stalin and Hitler right? Could not atheists in a community, if they become a majority, abolish Christianity by a vote? Dr. Lee's book is a warning to those who refuse to see the fundamental causes of the debacle in Europe.

Maybe They Were Just Superstitious

The American Federation of Labor has abolished its 13 vice presidencies.

We seem finally to be getting some action in at least one field of inflation.

One of the posts eliminated was held by John L. Lewis, who in recent years has been in and out of the AFL more frequently than the barbershop.

A couple of years ago when John L. led his miners back home, the AFL killed the fatted calf. But this year's convention was held on meatless Tuesday.

Lewis rebelled at signing the non-Communist affidavit required by the Taft-Hartley Law. Not that John L. is a Commie. In fact, he has the dubious distinction of being one of the very few men in the country who was never even investigated by Martin Dies.

Lewis is about as red as a shamrock. But nobody is going to make him do anything. Nossir, whatever else you say of him, John L. positively can't be BROW-beaten.

Reviewing the Tax Veto

By Raymond Moley

A NUMBER of letters received by this reporter, as well as a number of newspaper editorials, have taken forceful exception to a statement written in this column three weeks ago. The column pointed out that, in light of the stop-gap figures now offered for European help and the present prospects for an increase in the surplus, there was no justification for the President's veto of tax reduction. The question is asked whether such a conclusion does not overlook the desirability of debt reduction. It is also suggested that the column was indulging in second-guessing.

As to the latter suggestion, the answer is in earlier editions of the column. Eleven months ago, the paramount duty of reducing the debt was stressed. The formula cited then was an average of $2,000,000,000 a year—$3,000,000,000 for a good year and $1,000,000,000 for a poor one. In his budget message 10 months ago, the President suggested a $200,000,000 cut. With reference to European needs, a column five weeks ago suggested that the figure of $5,000,000,000, then current in Washington, was too high, for the simple reason that the material available for export in such an amount was not forthcoming. Later, the Washington figure came down to $400,000,000. Now it seems to be considerably less for the year, and the highest stop-gap figure is $800,000,000.

Income Prospects Higher

What seems to be overlooked is the prospect for a large increase in the national income in the current fiscal year over the figure for the year ending last June. Wages, agricultural income, rents, dividends and the earnings of unincorporated businesses will be materially higher. The GI bonds are in the market, installment selling and buying will be out from under Regulation W on Nov. 1. All this will swell the national income and increase the size of the surplus.

Another reason for anticipating a surplus larger than has been officially anticipated is that tax revenues rise relatively faster than the national income. In a period of business inflation, individual incomes rise and move into higher tax brackets. Incomes formerly tax free move into the range of Federal taxation.

The exception of a much larger surplus is based on the assumption that there will be no substantial increase in the $37,000,000,000 estimate of expenditures for the current fiscal year. Further budget cuts to take effect this year are out of the question. Nor are the prospects bright in an election year for further pruning of the 1948-49 budget. The forthcoming session will reek with politics. It will be hurried to enable statesmen to get home before the conventions.

There may, of course, be requests for increases in defense appropriations because of the strained international situation. The Army and Navy have not yet spoken publicly about their needs.

But on the basis of present prospects—the size of the national income, the current rate of employment and business, the stop-gap figures which are limited by the amount of goods and food we can spare, the inflationary forces ahead—there is justification for the belief that congress was right and the President was wrong on tax reduction. And, it may be added, this is not second-guessing.

There are two aspects of tax reduction on which conservative people can legitimately differ. The first is the position that tax reduction simply increases inflationary pressure on a limited supply of goods. Also, that a $4,000,000,000 or $5,000,000,000 reduction in the national debt is prudent in a good year.

The other side of the picture concerns the effect of tax reduction in expanding productive capacity and in encouraging capital outlays in private business.

Honest men may differ on these points.

Waste Wood May Be Molasses Source

By The Associated Press

MISSOULA, Mont.—Hopes for commercial production of molasses from waste wood have been expressed by Charles L. Tebbe, director of the Northern Rocky Mountain Forest and Range Experiment Station.

Molasses already has been produced from this source at the forest products laboratory in Madison, Wis., and is being tested as a cattle feed at the University of Wyoming, Montana State University, Washington State College and the University of Idaho.

Tebbe said that if these tests prove the value of the feed, sawdust and other waste wood may take on great new value.

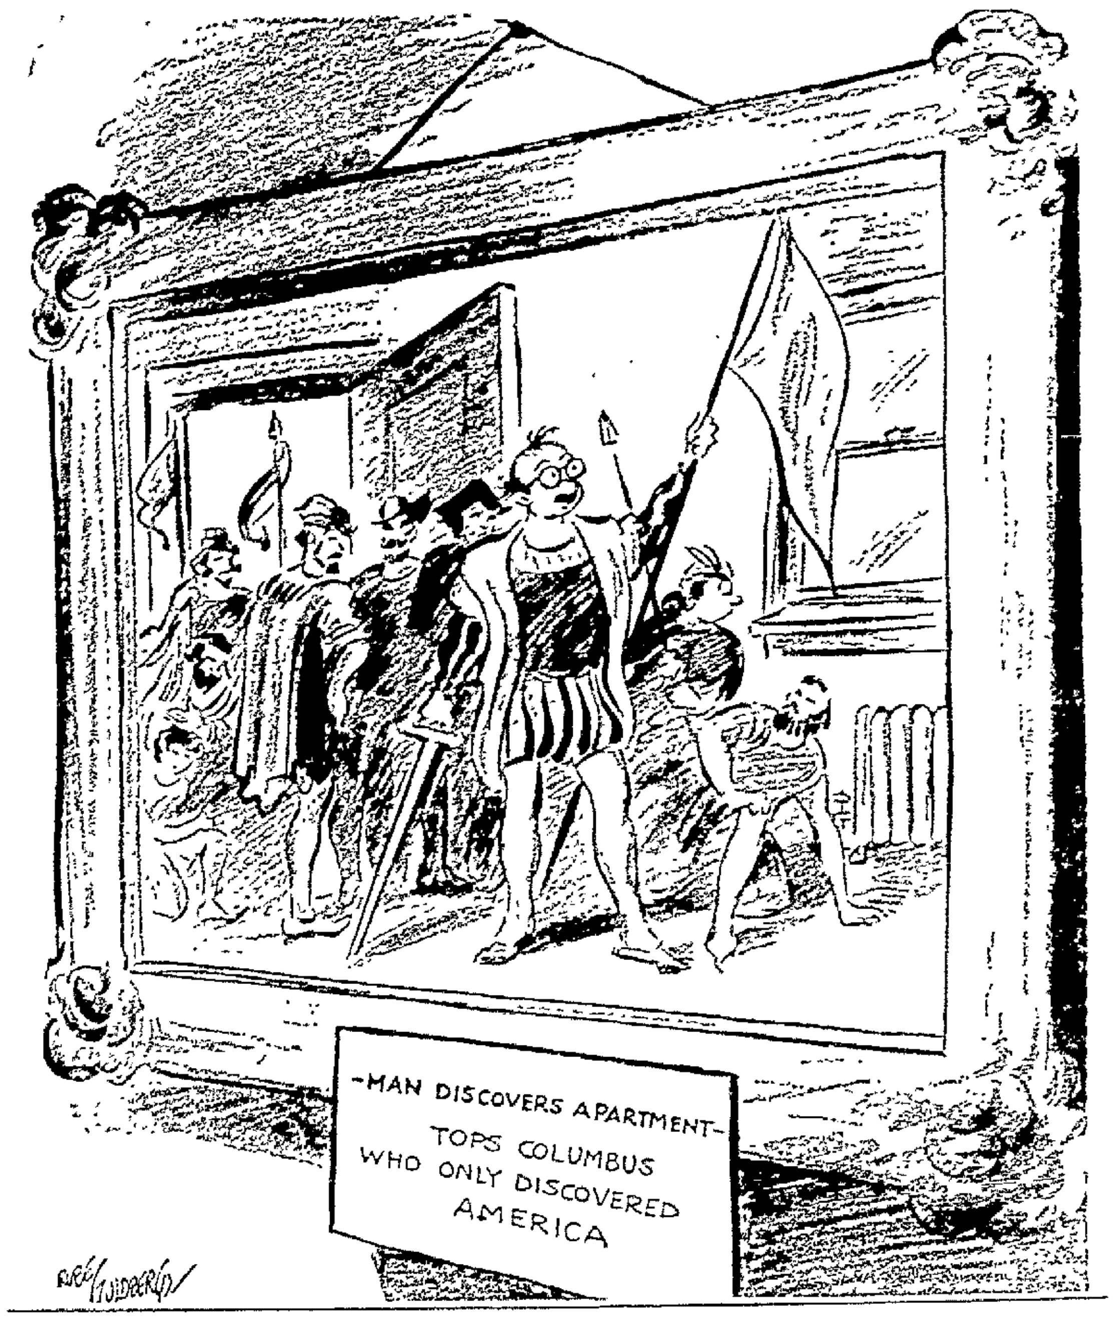
New Version Of Old Picture



From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, Oct. 21, 1937.

Ninety Pennsylvania railroad workers, assembled from five states, began a track improvement project that involved relaying of two and one-half miles of rails and new crossings for the railroad's intersections at West Center and Silver streets.

The fall meeting of the Cincinnati Archdiocesan Federation of the National Council of Catholic Women was in session at Hotel Harding.

Mrs. Glen Penry and Miss Alice Neidig were guests at a meeting of the Three G's club at the home of Mrs. Albert Peacock on Belmont street.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Glen R. Elsasser of South Vine street.

Last ties between Marion's German speaking residents and their religious worship were served when the congregation of Salem Evangelical and Reformed church voted to discontinue the German service which had been held on the first Sunday of each month.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Friday, Oct. 21, 1927.

Agitation in behalf of establishing an airport in Marion was given increased impetus when E. A. Johnston, head of the Johnston Aircraft Mfg. Co. of Dayton, flew here to address the Marion Kiwanis club, was forced to soar around over the city for half an hour hunting for a place to land, finally was forced to come down in a cow pasture south of the city.

Mrs. Mary Firtch, 60, died at her home on North State street.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Lares of Blaine avenue.

Carl Tozzer was elected recorder of Marion Company No. 15, Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of J. H. McCoy, who had moved to Youngstown.

The Marion county commissioners rejected bids on installation of a new heating plant at the Children's home because all bids were above the engineer's estimate.

The executive board of the Marion County Federation of Women's clubs voted $150 to carry on nutrition work in the schools.

Mrs. Bruce Everett, 38, died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Fryman, in Green Camp.

Decide We Must

By Joseph Alsop

ATHENS, Oct. 21 — In every nerve center of Europe, the same phenomenon repeats itself with a kind of crude monotony. Because we have been too little and too late in the past, demands are now pouring in on Washington from every quarter for instantaneous decisions of the gravest character, affecting the whole American future. As these words are written, the harassed artisans of American policy are probably being pressed for still another such decision by Ambassador to Greece Lincoln MacVeagh and the chief of military intelligence, Major General William Chamberlin.

Under the Greek-Turkish aid program, the American mission ably headed by Dwight Griswold is already charged with superintending Greek economic reconstruction and supplying the Greek army. A semblance of peace must first be restored to strife-torn Greece, however, if this American investment is not to be fruitless. Therefore, the signs are here in Athens that MacVeagh and Chamberlin will recommend American assumption of a third, really crucial responsibility in Greece—the responsibility for advising the Greek army on the actual conduct of its operations against the Communist guerrillas.

Greece Makes Request

The Greek government has the initiative in requesting this further assistance, and has indicated willingness to attach a very special weight to American military "advice." If plans laid here go through, the Griswold mission will be supplemented with an American military operational staff. The staff group will be composed of a top echelon to work with the Greek general staff, skeleton staffs to be attached to each of the Greek army corps, and operational liaison units to work on the brigade and battalion levels.

The decision to send such a staff group will constitute open acknowledgement of an almost unlimited American strategic and political liability in Greece. Yet the remarkable body of men who are in charge of our effort here are unanimous that the decision must be taken, and taken without any further delay. President Truman can give the order on his own responsibility, under his constitutional powers as commander in chief. He will be asked to do so.

It must be admitted at once that these reports from Greece are intended only as spot checks on a vital national venture, and are therefore based entirely on intensive consultation with the Americans involved. As described by them, the position necessitating the radical new decision may be briefly outlined as follows:

The Andartes, as the Greek guerrillas are called, number only 18,000, and approximately 60 per cent of their strength is now composed of kidnaped forced recruits, held in line by threats to murder them and their families. This increasing reliance on forced recruits has two important meanings. The sources from which Communsit volunteers were drawn have now almost dried up. And the Communist leaders of the Andartes, being unable to rely absolutely on their men, can no longer freely use their best guerrilla tactic of dispersal under attack. Thus the situation is favorable to a Greek army offensive.

Unfortunately, however, the Greek army is now largely immobilized. Heavily superior forces are always needed against guerrillas, and especially in this case, where the guerrillas are invulnerably based and supplied in Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania. The British trained the Greek army of 140,000 men as the cadre of a much bigger force, and thus assigned all but 40,000 men to supply and other duties behind the lines. Finally, the employment of the 40,000 available effectives is unhappily influenced by politics.

From Our Past

Students of our own past will recall how, in the Civil war, the western armies were at first tied down by the need to guard the politically important border states. Greek politics are even more pervasive than American politics in the era of Secretary of War Simon Cameron, the man who would not steal a red-hot stove if it was nailed down.

Politics demand the defense of the more important cities and towns in northern Greece, and thus the Greek army's effectives are almost all tied up on guard duty. In Thrace, where the situation is worst, the Greek army has a brigade, entirely dispersed in guard detachments of companies and platoons, each within its own strong point. But the guerrillas also have a brigade, commonly operate in battalion strength, and now enjoy absolute freedom of movement by night. The countryside is terrorized. Communications are cut. The crops are not being harvested. The guarded strong points are full of able bodied peasants who have taken refuge from kidnaping. And unless the trend is rapidly reversed, the situations must deteriorate further to the point where the people will accept even the rule of the Andartes as preferable to the present chaos.

Two-Party Remedy Proposed

The remedy now planned is in two parts. First, newly formed, lightly armed national guard units will take over defense of the strong points, which is quite legitimately important. Second, largely to insulate military operations from politics, the American staff group will be sent to advise the Greek army in its offensive effort. The leading Americans here are convinced that this remedy will work, provided the Kremlin does not abandon its present flimsy pretense of nonintervention and order its Balkan puppet armies across the Greek border in naked aggression. But this would mean that the Kremlin wants war, which seems incredible.

A Punch in The Nose

By Truman Twill

Here's one of those puzzling news items th drive newspaper readers to comic books. At le in a comic book you can turn to the last pa and see how things turned out:

"Buenos Aires, Oct. 16—A pistol duel betwe two members of the Argentine Parliament w called off tonight because of rain."

It reminds us of the fellow we were going punch on the nose. But something always inte fered. One day he would be too busy. Anoth day we'd be too busy. On some days both of would be busy. Or maybe we'd have to call it o because it was raining, though most of our e cuses made more sense than that.

Our best excuse for not punching this fello on the nose was that he didn't know he had coming. In any event, he never thought he get it, and it seemed like a dirty trick to surpr him with something he wasn't expecting. F one thing, it would have required an explan tion. "I am going to punch you on the no because . . .", etc.

By the time the explanation had been com pleted, he'd have had time to rally his resource so to speak, and they were considerable. On t other hand, to have punched him first and e plained afterward wouldn't have been sportin It would have been the classic crime of shooti a sitting bird.

This fellow had a disconcerting habit of tur ing affable at inopportune times. Just when t psychological preparation for letting him ha the long-delayed punch seemed to be complete at the time when he most richly deserved wh was coming to him—the cuss would turn frien ly as a pup

Maybe it was deliberate. Maybe he knew whe to turn his meanness on and turn it off, to ke himself from getting punched on the nose. B he always managed to make it seem accident and natural. It was darned disconcerting threw a fellow off balance.

He was kept off balance, too. We haven't t slightest doubt he itched to let us have one the smeller as hard as we itched to let him ha one But something always happened. We'd too busy, or he'd be too busy, or both of would be too busy. Or maybe it would rain, a we'd run a dead heat to get under shelter. Eith that or one of us would have to borrow a ra coat from the other one to keep dry.

Those two fellows in Argentina never w have their duel. Something always will inte fere. They have our sympathy, also the sym pathy of the fellow we never punched on t nose. It's a terrible thing to inhibit the desire punch someone on the nose who rea deserves it.

UN DRIVES FOR VOTE ON BALKAN QUESTION

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 — The United Nations assembly drove toward a final vote on the Greek case today with all signs pointing to an overwhelming victory for the United States in its demand for a UN watchdog commission in the Balkans.

Delegates held a special session last night to speed up the debate and UN officials predicted balloting would begin late this afternoon. Only seven nations—White Russia, the Soviet Ukraine, Australia, Britain, Cuba, Greece and France—remained on the speakers list, which has been closed.

The American resolution for a watchdog commission previously was approved 36 to 6 in the 57-nation political committee and observers questioned whether a four-pronged attack by the Soviet bloc yesterday would change any of the votes on the assembly floor. The proposal needs a two-thirds majority of the 57 delegates present and voting to pass.

CANTON'S MINISTERS DECLINE "CRUSADE"

By The Associated Press

CANTON, O., Oct. 21—A warning to Canton ministers that their city would be "throttled by the lawless element" unless "respectable citizens fight back and show their teeth," brought no indication today that local clergymen would lead a crusade against vice as did Steubenville pastors.

Guy C. Hiner, 66-year-old retired industrialist and Republican representative from Stark county in the Ohio house, told the Stark County Ministerial association yesterday this city of 123,000 had earned "an unsavory reputation throughout the country" for vice and racket conditions, "but apparently nothing is being done about it."

Formation of a citizens' committee to combat gambling, bingo games, prostitution and other conditions assailed by Hiner was mentioned in the meeting, but the president of the group, Rev. D. W. Foreman, reported last night that "no resolutions were adopted and nothing was done in that respect."

Hiner said "the preachers asked me to talk on local conditions" and he did so in spite of "three anonymous phone calls in the past couple of days warning me not to make this speech."

The speech came in the home stretch of a spirited mayoralty campaign in which Republican candidate J. Stewart Ake pounded at the present Democratic administration of Mayor Carl F. Klein on the issue of vice and rackets.

Murder Court Studies Texas Doctor's Sanity

By The Associated Press

LA GRANGE, Texas, Oct. 21—More witnesses were here today to testify as to the sanity of Dr. Lloyd I. Ross on May 25 when four members of the Willard York family were slain in southwest Texas ranch country.

Chief Defense Attorney Fred Blundell would not say if the vivacious wife of the young San Antonio surgeon would be called to the stand.

The four victims of the early morning hail of rifle fire were friends of the doctor and his wife.

They were investment broker York, 38; his wife, Gertrude, 43; their son, John, 8, and York's mother, Mrs. Mary York, 67, all of San Antonio.

Driving to church from their ranch home, a man with a lever-action rifle confronted their machine.

Ann York, 13-year-old daughter of the investment broker and his wife, managed to flee from the car while the slayer reloaded his gun.

Called to the witness stand, the frail little San Antonio school girl pointed at the surgeon, "our family doctor," and said he was the man with the rifle.

U.S. SAID TO SUFFER FROM HIDDEN HUNGER

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Oct. 21—North Americans may consider themselves the best fed people in the world but "we still are suffering from a hidden hunger because of the quality of food we eat," says W. D. Davis, Kansas City farm broker and appraiser.

Speaking to a session of farm brokers at the 38th annual meeting of the Ohio Association of Real Estate boards here yesterday, Davis said the facts were "well brought out" by selective service rejections for physical reasons.

The state of Colorado had to reject for physical reasons only three out of every 10 men drafted, he said, while in one southern state the ratio was seven out of 10.

Flier Dies Saving Town From Being Hit by Plane

By The Associated Press

SEARSPORT, Me., Oct. 21—A World War II ace went down to death with his falling plane yesterday rather than let it ram homes in this little village.

Maj. Kenneth G. Smith, 33, of Boise, Idaho, who downed six German planes in World War II, was killed when his Thunderbolt crashed in a stream bed, exploded and burned.

Eyewitnesses said Smith stayed at the controls until the fighter was clear of any buildings. He was out on a wing, ready but too late to parachute, when the craft hit.

Has No Counsel

He told the committee he had no counsel and I think I can speak for myself."

"I am a motion pciture actor—I hope," he said when asked his profession.

He said he has made a special study of Marxism, socialism, communism and other "isms."

Waiting to follow Menjou to the witness chair were John C. Moffitt, movie critic and reviewer, and Miss Ayn Rand, a novelist and movie writer.

Miss Rand testified briefly yesterday, following producers Jack Warner and Louis B. Mayer and producer-director Sam Wood, who charged that Communist and "party liners" have been trying for years to gain control of the movies.

Warner and Mayer were more cautious in their criticism, although both said they were aware of efforts of some people in the industry, especially writers, to inject un-American propoganda into the films.

Both insisted they have vigilantly guarded against this propaganda and have cut it whenever it was discovered.

A large part of yesterday's session was taken up with a discussion of individual movies, including "Mission to Moscow," "Song of Russia," and "Mrs. Miniver."

Both Warner and Mayer stoutly denied that "White House pressure" was responsible for some wartime films picturing Russia in a favorable light.

DE GAULLE EXPECTED TO CHANGE FRANCE

By The Associated Press

PARIS Oct. 21—Gen. Charles De Gaulle was the top political figure in France again today and Frenchmen believe there are going to be some changes made.

They're not sure whether the leader of the new anti-Communist Rally of the French People (RPF), which swept the Paris municipal elections Sunday and rolled up 40 per cent of the popular vote in the provinces, would work now or wait until the party gets its first crack at parliamentary elections—next June—but they're sure changes are coming.

One change already was evident, and many Frenchmen attributed it to De Gaulle's victory. Parisians woke up to find their buses and subways running on schedule after having been strike-bound for a week. The strike was settled last night.

Struggle with Reds

This work stoppage had been depicted as a struggle between the non-Communist government of France and Communist-led labor unions. Positions of both the government and the Communists were said to have been weakened by De Gaulle's demonstration of strength, although the Communists did not actually lose any backing at the ballot boxes. And this was held by some to have been a factor in settlement of the strike.

federation said, instead of staying on the farm where poultrymen "must continue to pour scarce and expensive grain into these birds to protect their investment."

Luckman said his assignment of saving 100,000,000 bushels of grain for Europe this winter would not permit acceptance of so general a program.

"Be Specific"

"I feel impelled to ask for the specific measures and steps by which they plan to achieve conservation," he asserted.

Luckman suggested two measures which might warrant the abandonment of poultryless Thursdays.

►An agreement to eliminate certain grains from commercial feeds, and a curtailment of the use of other grains. The agriculture department has advised him that this is possible through the use of substitutes, he said.

►An effort by the poultry raisers to exact a pledge from breeders and hatchers for a 25 or 30 per cent cut in the hatching of chic The poultrymen indicated th m got be able to do this, Luckm ceded.

FREEDOM URGED FOR AMERICAN INDIANS

By The United Press

FORT HAYES, N. D.—A long range program pointing toward the eventual social and economic freedom of the American Indian is being worked out here by the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Hiram Clark, resident superintendent of the Standing Rock Indian Reservation, said the plan will be submitted to the commissioner of Indian affairs when completed.

He said it calls for the establishment of the younger generation of Indians in the cattle industry—an industry to which they are adapted.

He said efforts to make "dirt farmers" out of Indians had so far been unsuccessful.

Clark said bureau officials are convinced that the Indian must be given the means to support himself before the government scraps its traditional guardianship.

Looks to Future

"Most of the younger Indians are anxious to assume the full duties of citizenship," Clark said, "But the time is not yet ripe for wholesale emancipation.

"We have only to look at the slum districts of our larger cities to find out what happens to an Indian who leaves the reservation unequipped to cope with his new-found freedom."

Clark said he was in favor of establishing a board to pass on the eligibility of Indians for release and gradually wind up the affairs of the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Clark also has reversed a long-standing bureau policy. He has come out in support of a proposal to erect a monument to the memory of Sioux Chief Sitting Bull.

It is the first time any Indian bureau official ever has consented to glorify an Indian who had been consistently hostile to the whites.

Favors Memorial

Clark said he was in favor of a measure introduced by Rep. Francis Case (R.-S.D.) to appropriate $2,500 to erect a memorial at the grave of the Sioux chief near here.

Neglected and lonely, the grave is now marked only by four rust-encrusted car axles embedded in the corners of a crude concrete slab and a simple cabin of stones, not one of which bears Sitting Bull's name.

Drunk Shoots Two Men Who Tried To Help Him

By The United Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 21—Edward E. Rathmann, 42, oil salesman, confessed today that he shot and killed two Chicago labor leaders last night in the mistaken belief that they had roughed him up while he was intoxicated.

Actually, according to witnesses, the men were merely trying to help him after he passed out. Rathman admitted that he was in a "drunken stupor" at the time of the shooting.

The shooting occurred in a northside tavern where Rathmann had been drinking with the two men, George McCarthy, 50, and Patrick S. Brennan, 65.

Brennan was killed outright. McCarthy died several hours later in Danish-American hospital.

I have my problems just the same as you do. Some people want me to deliver their paper one place, others want it in some other location. I try to please them all.

I am a little business man, in business for myself. I buy my papers at wholesale, paying for them each week, and sell them at retail, the difference is my profit and working capital.

I am the sole judge of whom to extend credit to.

If you don't pay me, I can't pay for my papers, I lose my profit, and become discouraged.

I collect each Saturday morning, help me by paying each week and should you not be at home at my regular collection time leave your money and card where I can get it.

Love's Perilous Path

By ADELE GARRISON

ONE of the two men who came into the Underwood living room at my father's bidding was an old and valued comrade of underground work shared together. Dicky sprang forward as he came into the room and extended his hand in cordial greeting.

"K!" he exclaimed. "Gosh, it's good to see you again!"

My greeting was a trifle more restrained, but not less hearty. For my remembrances of "Mr. K," the tall, debonair young FBI man who had helped in clearing the eastern end of Long Island of its nest of Nazi spies, were most pleasant ones. Of all the helpers my father has at his command, I would have picked this one as a comrade on any expedition.

"And now, Margaret," my father said, with his hand on the arm of the other man who had come into the room, "may I present to you Maor Vantria? Major, my daughter, Mrs. Graham."

"Major Vantria"—and I was sure the name was what Dicky calls a "phony"—bowed from the waist. I expected him to lift my hand to his lips, for his appearance, though not in uniform, was that of a young foreign military man, whose jet black clipped moustache and black hair, whose wave no brushing could control, set off his intense pallor and a deep scar which contorted his face into a cruel, caricature of what it must once have been.

For a second, the cruelty which that scar meant—no dueling cut, or battle sword thrust was that—held me horrified. Then, as I looked hurriedly away from the man's face, for I did not wish to appear to stare, I caught Harry Underwood's eyes watching me and the expression of them suddenly tore away a veil.

I turned back to "Major Vantria" and extended my hand to him cordially.

"Welcome back to New York, Georges," I said. "It's nice to see you again."

Georges, exiled king of Trees, for he was the man standing before me, seized both my hands, lifted them to his lips and kissed them warmly, with the foreign gesture which is so ingrained that Georges, without it, would not be Georges.

When he released me, he turned upon Harry Underwood.

"Did I not tell you, my friend?" he cried. "She is one who cannot be fooled! But I am very glad you were—what do you say—game enough to bet on your own handiwork. I need every penny I can pick up!"

Harry Underwood winked at me, without Georges' seeing him, and I knew that the wager had been a mere gesture and that he had been quite sure I would see through the disguise he had given Georges, master of make-up though he was.

But Dicky was staring at him in frank admiration.

"It must be the eyes of love," he said to the surrounding air.

Then he turned to Harry.

"You fooled me, old top," he declared. "My congratulations on a damned good piece of make-up. He would pass muster anywhere, except with some theatrical sharp like my spouse with an eye that would make any eagle hang his tail feathers over his myopic orbs."

"Never mind being as funny as you can, Dickybird," Lillian advised dryly. "Let it content you that we're all swooning in our chairs, and give us a chance to get the lowdown on this."

The wraith of a smile touched my father's lips, and I saw that he was in rare good humor. It thrilled me to know that the reason for his gratification was his gnowledge that I was ready to aid him. But my curiosity was as lively as Lillian's, and I listened avidly, as did the others, when my father leaned forward in his chair after we had all been seated, and began to speak, slowly, impressively, as is his wont.

"This make-up, Georges, I am sorry to say"—he addressed the young exiled king of Trees with a rueful smile—"will have to stay on until you reach the shelter of the Sag Harbor farmhouse, with its underground secret chamber to which you can retreat at a moment's notice if unwelcome company arrives."

So Georges, and Mr. "K" were to be my house guests at Sag Harbor for the duration of whatever plan by father was concocting for Georges' safety!

"We have had to make plans very hurriedly," my father went on, and something in his manner told me that the impetuous young royal fugitive had upset my father's schedule by his unexpected appearance, a proceeding warranted by the greatest urgency.

"As I have told you," my father explained, "everything in our plans for the future of Transvania hinges upon the saving of the vast treasure hidden in the secret caverns beneath the royal castle from the predatory hands of Otto, Olga's eldest son. Georges tells me that the castle has been destroyed but that the treasure vaults were not destroyed but are buried deep beneath rubble. But Pietro fears that Otto, unable to get to Transvania himself, may give the secret to some woman friend of his common law wife, Laura. She could not get back to Transvania herself, but she has a most brilliant and clever woman friend who might manage it. Pietro has sent Georges to thwart her going."

"And I have sent myself," Georges said emphatically, "to marry the woman I love before I have to go back into the inferno which is now Transvania."

WOULD-BE TEACHERS REPORTED GROWING

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 21 — A whopping increase in the number of Ohio college students planning to become school teachers was reported today by the state education department.

The department said a survey based on reports from registrars of 40 of the state's 54 colleges and universities showed that one of every eight students expects to become a teacher.

"There's no occasion to consider this as a solution to the Ohio teachers' shortage," Dr. Clyde Hissong, state superintendent of public instruction said, "but it certainly indicates an excellent trend in the right direction."

Hissong said he expected the shift of students into colleges of education to continue at an even faster rate "because of inducements being offered in the way of higher teachers' salaries and anticipated competition for jobs in other fields."

The last state legislature earmarked approximately $19,500,000 for increasing teachers' pay in 1947, an average increase of around $500.

COUNCIL HEARS TALK ON COMMUNITY FUND

Members of the Manufacturers Council of the Marion Chamber of Commerce heard Walter Grumblatt of the Midtown Chevrolet Co. speak on the current Community Fund drive at a luncheon meeting Monday at the Hotel Harding.

Later a general discussion of plant operations was led by Council Chairman E. W. Barnhart. It was observed that operations generally are running smoother than has been the case for some time, aided considerably by a marked reduction in shortages.

The U. S. census of 1940 showed 372,384 Americans who were immigrants from the Netherlands or children of such immigrants

At 41, John Coolidge Is Where He Wants To Be—On His Own

By The Associated Press

HARTFORD, Conn.—John Coolidge at 41 is just where he wanted to be almost from the day he left the glamor of the White House—strictly on his own.

It could have been otherwise for the son of the late President Calvin Coolidge. But he wanted to avoid being the "boss's son," he said as he told with characteristic Coolidge shyness why he was living the quiet life of a small business executive.

There was an echo of his father's famous "I-do-not-choose-to-run" statement in his own explanation of what he is rather than what he might have been.

John's father-in-law, to met Gov John H Trumbull of Connecticut, was head of the big Trumbull Electric Manufacturing company in Plainville back in 1928 when young Coolidge, then fresh out of Amherst college, was casting about for a career.

"I knew I could get a job in Trumbull Electric," he recalled, "but I chose railroading because I wanted to see if I could go on my own".

That's the way he felt then, just before the Coolidges moved out of the White House. That's the way John Coolidge feels today.

"I want to prove to myself that I can get along without being pushed—without being the boss's son," he said.

Coolidge, "just plain folks" to his neighbors in suburban Farmington, worked for the New Haven railroad for 12 years before he quit his job as traveling agent to become his own boss. Now he heads a Hartford business forms manufacturing company (the Connecticut Manifold Forms Co.) which employs 22 persons.

Both at his office and at his home where his companions are his wife, the former Florence Trumbull and their two children, Cynthia, 13 and Lydia, 8, he lives the quiet life of the typical business man.

He mows his own lawn and does other odd jobs about the new red brick colonial house he moved into last April after living in a converted stable because of the housing shortage.

Coolidge has many hobbies—fishing, hunting, reading (mostly newspapers) and woodworking—but politics is not one of them. He said he felt he had neither the temperament nor a "thick enough skin" for politics.

He does, however, have one political gripe. His business, he asserted, is "hamstrung" by government regulations, and he feels that federal taxes are unfair to him.

PATROL MAKES ARRESTS

Three arrests were made by the state patrol yesterday for traffic violations Robert Swaley, 21, of Cleveland, is being held in the Delaware county jail on a charge of speeding on route 42 Herbert Swope, 32, of Columbus, was arrested on route 42 and charged with speeding He posted a bond to appear before Delaware Mayor P. J Foley Spencer Foor, 19, of Delaware, was arrested on route 23 and charged with driving without an operators' license. He is to appear before Mayor Foley on Oct. 24

Harding To Seek 6th At Ashland Thursday

Harding gridders will meet [illegible] when they go to Ashland Thursday night to play the A's in the seventh Marion football encounter of the season.

Ashland has but one loss to mar their record, a 20-0 setback at the hands of Fremont Ross.

The A's stopped Willard, 33-6, Canton Township, 13-12, Sandusky, 20-0, Shelby, 18-6, and Wooster, 26-12.

They've scored a total of 148 points to their opponents 38 to earn one of the best scoring records of teams in this area.

The Presidents, while not piling up as big a total of points have scored more than six times as many per game as their opponents. They've racked up 113 while holding their opponents to a mere 18.

Unfortunately for game forecasters the two teams have not as yet played a common opponent. While Harding opponents have come from bigger schools than Ashland's, they have generally had poorer season records.

Loren W. Tibbals, sports editor of the Ashland Times-Gazette, calls Harding "Ashland's toughest opponent during the balance of the season."

Since it is universally conceded that Harding's toughest contest will come with Fremont Ross the Ashland game might well rate as Harding's next toughest game on tap.

Last year, Ashland handed the Presidents a 12-7 last-minute defeat. In 1945, the Prexies won, 14-12, with Prexyman Dave Lee kicking over the two winning conversions.

The game will be played in Brookside stadium in Ashland.

Woman Identifies Man As Slayer of Friend

DRACUT, Mass., Oct. 21—The estranged wife of a soldier serving in Italy walked into the operating room of an Arlington hospital during the night and, State Police Capt. Joseph Crescio said, identified an Air Force veteran as the roadside slayer of her companion and her assailant in a nightmarish kidnap-ride.

Crescio said that Mrs. Marion Richards, 24, mother of two children, took a quick look at the man, still under the effects of anesthesia, and identified him as the person who had stabbed and bludgeoned to death her friend, Edward Pare, 22, also a veteran, and then raped her in repeated attacks.

Crescio named the man as Russell D. Davis, 23, and said he will be arraigned on a charge of murder, upon recovery. Surgeons had removed two bullets from his stomach shortly before Mrs. Richards made her dramatic entrance to the operating room. The police captain said he had attempted suicide.

GRID INJURIES BRING OUT LUSTY HUMOR

By The United Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—Football is a bruising business, so it isn't hard to understand the lusty humor which arises when the boys are sitting around cutting up the tough touches.

There were many raised eyebrows in the effete Ivy league when Howie Odell, Yale coach, breathed a sigh of relief because injured halfback Levi Jackson didn't have a skull fracture "but only a head deformity, thank goodness!"

Ensign Dick Duden, Navy scout went him one better today.

Duden, talking about Penn center Chuck Bednarik, was explaining that the lineman had been kicked in the lungs and was spitting blood.

"But I don't think it's anything serious," Duden shrugged.

Nonchalance, evidently, is a handy attribute in the face of assault and battery. Something like that of the young freshman halfback who cockily reported to a Big Nine school with a fistfull of press clippings. Starting in his first game he fumbled the kickoff in the end zone, picked up the ball, went to midfield, left his blockers, reversed his field, found an opening and went 105 yards for a touchdown.

The coach yanked him out and bawled him out.

"You did everything wrong," bellowed the coach. "You fumbled, left your blockers and reversed your field. All wrong . . ."

"How," the kid came back, "was it for length, coach?"

On the other hand, if you're a fan, it pays to watch who you're talking to. Like the Washington man who saw a game in Baltimore. Afterwards he climbed into a taxicab and proceeded to comment, to the driver, that the Colts were a "bunch of bums."

The hackie slammed on the brakes, opened the door and said: "Get out, I'm a Baltimore fan!"

It's a rough sport, all right.

DELAYS IN TRIAL THROW SATIRA INTO HYSTERIA

By The Associated Press

HAVANA, CUBA, Oct. 21—Patricia (Satira) Schmidt, Toledo, O., was reported to be near hysteria today in her prison cell because of another delay in her oft-postponed trial on a charge of murdering her lover, John Lester Mee of Chicago, aboard his yacht, last April.

The three-judge Cuban court, apparently irked because an attorney and 45 witnesses failed to appear when the court reconvened yesterday after a weekend recess, postponed the trial to Oct 31.

MASSILLON HITS TOP IN SCHOOL GRID POLL

Upper Sandusky Catches 2 Votes for No. 1.

By FRITZ HOWELL
Ohio AP Sports Editor

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 21—Massillon's mighty Tigers, who ruled Ohio scholastic football with an iron hand in the 30's when Paul Brown was at the helm, moved back to the top of the heap today as sports writers nominated Coach "Bud" Houghton's five-time victors the state's No. 1 team.

The Tigers, after a couple of close ones in early-season tilts, waded through Mansfield's once-defeated Tygers Friday night, 27-0, before a crowd of 21,000, and roared to the top of the "best 10" list as Cleveland Cathedral Latin, Toledo Waite and Hamilton, last week's top trio, suffered their first defeats.

Despite the losses by the three leaders Buckeye scribes decided they were still pretty fair ball clubs by keeping Cathedral Latin and Toledo Waite among the "big 10" along with Canton McKinley, which had bellwethered the 585 teams until upset 7-6 by Canton Lincoln.

Barberton's Magics, 28-6 victory over Toledo Libbey, vaulted all the way from eighth to second place, and perhaps Libbey Coach "Bus" Harding was right when he said after the game.

"Barberton is the best team in Ohio today. It's the best ball club we've run into two years."

Massillon and Barberton get a chance to battle it out later in the season as Houghton matches wits with Harry Strobel, former Massillon player now coaching the Magics. Houghton has masterminded the Tigers to three straight wins over former Massillon coaches — Howard Brinker of Steubenville, Mel Knowlton of Alliance, and Augie Morningstar of Mansfield, who led Massillon to an unbeaten season in 1941.

Here's how the state's sports writers rate the teams after the weekend upsets:

Team	Won-Lost	Votes
Massillon	5-0	144
Barberton	5-0	109
Middletown	6-0	74
Canton McKinley	4-1	65
Fremont Ross	6-0	60
Cleveland Holy Name	6-0	53
Columbus West	6-0	48
Cleveland Cath. Latin	4-1	43
Elyria	6-0	37
Toledo Waite	4-1	30

Springfield's topsy-turvy Wildcats, who swept Mansfield and Hamilton out of the unbeaten class on successive weekends after failing to win any of their first four, were close up with 28 points, tied with Canton Lincoln's once-beaten squad.

Others gaining support were Akron West 22, Steubenville 19, Hamilton 14, Salem 13, Martins Ferry 7, Fostoria 7, Warren 4, Bexley 4; Sandusky, Akron Central and Toledo Libbey 3; and Troy, Lisbon and Upper Sandusky two each.

Fight Brews Over Time Needed for Mobilization

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21—A Republican-Democratic battle over why it took so long to get American plants producing full blast for the war appears likely this week at a senate committee inquiry into industrial mobilization plans.

Deflected momentarily today for a look into the progress of war contract re-negotiations, the senate war investigating committee tomorrow will begin questioning Secretary of Defense Forrestal about a "lost" mobilization plan.

Chairman Brewster (R-Me) told reporters this plan involved three decades of work by the Army and Navy. It was capped, he added, by a polishing-up report made before the war by a citizens committee headed by Edward R. Stettinius Jr., who later became secretary of state.

The Maine senator complained that neither this plan, nor any other like it, was put into effect when the Pearl Harbor attack blasted this country into hostilities.

GALION JUNIOR SQUAD BEATS CENTRAL, 12-0

Takes Over Top Spot in Tri-City Loop Standings.

Galion Junior High school copped first place in the Tri-City league by beating Central gridders, 12-0, at the Harding stadium yesterday afternoon.

Pulling off some good old fashioned gridiron plays like the statue of liberty classic and end-arounds, the Galion team surprised the tired Central boys in the second and third periods.

Galion left end Kennedy scored one for the Junior Tigers on an end-around, and Schulters made it 12-0 through the line.

The Central team played their third game in a week yesterday.

By virtue of their win Monday, Galion's league record stands at four wins and no losses.

Central, with two wins, a tie and a loss, ties Edison for second place in the league.

Edison plays their last game today with non-league Upper Sandusky. They'll play at Upper.

Vernon and Bucyrus play their final games tomorrow afternoon at the Harding stadium. They both have lost three league games. The Vernon band is slated to provide entertainment.

Central's band put on a good show before a crowd of about 500.

TO OBSERVE YOUTH NIGHT AT REVIVAL

"The Means of Sanctification" was the subject for the revival sermon at Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church Monday night with Rev. Lewis Naumann of Canton preaching. Youth night will be observed at the service tonight at 7.30.

Rev. Naumann declared "It takes a willing heart and a surrendered life to get sanctified. We are sanctified by truth. Jesus had in His heart when He went to the cross that He was going to atone for the sins of men and the sanctification of their souls. As His blood is the basis for conversion of an individual so it is for sanctification. Something definite does happen when the Holy Ghost comes into the heart of an individual and the heart is purified."

MICHIGAN STAMPED AS NO. 1 GRID TEAM

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—Michigan has been stamped as the No. 1 team of the nation by the nation's sports writers participating in the weekly Associated Press football poll as a result of its fourth straight lopsided victory.

After digesting Saturday's results that included a 49-21 Michigan romp over Northwestern, 147 of the 185 writers participating in the most intensive AP poll in history, voted first place to the Wolverines.

Michigan led last week but its margin was not as secure. Notre Dame remained a strong second choice on the basis of total points but drew only 21 firsts. Michigan had 1793 points to 1553 for the Irish who downed Nebraska, 31-0.

As the two top teams never meet it is possible that their relative merits never will be determined.

Ten writers thought Texas had the best ball club in the land and there were enough others who were impressed to give them third place in the standings with 1,351 points.

Pacific coast football, on the way back after a few slim years, was represented twice in the first 10. California, with one first place vote, was fourth after submerging Washington State, 21-6, and Southern California, their chief rival for the Rose Bowl spot, placed tenth on a 48-6 rout of Oregon State. California plays Southern Cal Saturday in the "big game" on the Pacific slope.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—Mild selling opposition restrained many stock market leaders today although individual favorites managed to edge forward.

Man-Made Saphires Displayed at Museum

By The United Press

NEW YORK—Star saphires and star rubies, the first ever made by man, have been placed on exhibit at the American Museum of Natural History.

The synthetic gems, described as the greatest achievement yet in man-made gems, were created by the Linde Air Products Co. in Chicago and in Tonawanda, N. Y., in an oxy-hydrogen flame from powdered aluminum.

War-time necessity resulted in development of the synthetic jewels. Although such gems have been manufactured in Europe for 40 years, the process is new to America. The company developed synthetic jewels for precision instruments for planes and other war machines and now is making them for the jewelry trade.

A star ruby weighing about 10 carats was shown in comparison with a natural star ruby of the same size. The natural ruby was worth $50,000 to $100,000, whereas the artificial ruby was valued in hundreds of dollars. The difference between the two was said to be indistinguishable to a layman, although experts can identify the synthetic jewel.

He Proves Lemons Can Grow in Iowa

CEDAR FALLS, Ia.—A. J. Krogh, veteran barber here, isn't worried about an early frost.

Krogh harvested his annual crop of lemons—two this year—from a two-foot tree in a large earthen pot in his shop.

The biggest lemon, which weighed 2½ pounds and measured 15¼ inches in circumference, he harvested when the tree would no longer bear its weight. He now keeps it on display in a jar of formaldehyde. The other, which grew to 18 ounces, was knocked off accidentally.

The barber attributed the remarkable size of his fruit to "the secret mineral plant food that I feed the tree."

UNIQUE OUTDOOR MURAL. Depicting the history of the art of printing, this mural is one of two recently completed for the exterior wall of the Southeast Missourian's building at Cape Girardeau, Mo. Executed in color on weather-resisting ceramic tiles, the project required two years of continuous work for completion.

PRODUCER TESTIFIES. Sam Wood, veteran Hollywood producer and director, testifies before the house un-American activities committee in Washington. Wood said Communist efforts to gain control of movie industry workers have been going on for 10 years. (Associated Press Wirephoto)

Range

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 21—Wheat futures climbed one to three cents a bushel more right at the start of trading today, with December reaching another new high since 1917 at $3.10. Corn and oats also advanced. Continued lack of rainfall in the winter wheat belt was a market influence.

Wheat opened one to three cents higher than the previous finish, December $3.09-$3.10; corn was up one to 1½ cents, December $2.36½-¾, and oats were ⅞ to one cent higher, December 1.22-1.22½. Soybeans were bid up the eight-cent limit for the fourth consecutive session, November reaching $3.55¼.

TEACHER SHORTAGE

By Brush-Moore News Service

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—Elementary school teachers are in great demand in Pennsylvania. Dr. C. O. Williams, director of education extension at the Pennsylvania State college, laid blame for the shortage to the fact that elementary and secondary school teacher salaries have only recently been stabilized and to the great increase in the elementary school-age population. The teacher shortage will continue for several years he predicted.
